Blend in, but not too much

"As an artist and creative person, my goal is to make people happy when experiencing my art. I am passionate about bringing art into the most unusual places. Where you expect to find it the least. Imagine if the world was our canvas. I want my art to consume the bad and unleash the good. I want people to forget about their worries and surrender their bodies and minds to colours. Just like when we were children and the world was our oyster. The idea was to express the feeling I sometimes experience. When you want to blend in, yet stand out."

Where in the North of England are you based?

Liverpool

What does living in The North mean to you?

Pride. It means being surrounded with kind, generous and honest people who look after each other. It means community, and having someone to rely on in difficult times. Even if that someone is stranger on the bus.

What inspires you?

Surroundings, memories and experiences, emotions, determination, success.
